

Your Kids. Their Digital World.

As a parent purchasing cell phones, iPads and/or laptops for your kids, are you taking the necessary steps to understand the implications of these purchases?

Schools are ramping up their ability to best prepare students for learning in a digital world, and it is critical that they have your support. This session will outline the role parents must play, working in tandem with teachers, to help students understand the educational and ethical impact of their time online.

You will learn how your kids can dig deeper into topics and better organize their learning, how they can connect globally with experts and peers, as well as how to help kids understand the ethics behind working and playing online.
